

WELCOME

Welcome all, to our latest newsletter for 2017. Since our last newsletter the PSA office has featured in the prestigious International Journal of Project Management and carried out several ground-breaking projects both in Australia and internationally. In this edition, we will be focusing on what it takes to plan and deliver best value outcomes for programs and projects.

We discuss this through the lens of Paul Steinfors's peer reviewed and published paper "Community and post-disaster program Management Methodology" and also see how this methodology will work within the new portfolio of programs in Resilience and Value for Money in Nepal.

If you want to get your hands on the full copy, click right here

We will also explore stakeholder values: identifying practical and workable processes that can be integrated into any project management methodology through the working scope engaging key stakeholder values. We also discuss the critical factors in setting up an organisational governance structure, as well as looking at the latest news on recent appointments with the State Government and internationally.

We aim to foster continuous learning and improvement to help your organisation design simple and effective evaluation methods.

PSA NEWS

TRENDS FROM THE 80'S, WHERE ARE THEY NOW & WHERE ARE THEY GOING?

We have wound back the clock to 1988, to a time when PSA completed a unique survey of Project Management practices, drawing on nearly 100 organisations across all industries and had the work published on PC Week, noting that the findings then remain a keystone for all organisations.

So, nearly 30 years later, we are calling for participants for our latest survey. With the aim to strengthen the conversation in the community of practice on where organisations are presently at (with the success of their program and projects) and importantly identify the critical areas that can be improved to provide great benefit for a sustainable and resilient future.

Read Full Article Here

Click Here to take our Survey!

PSA ADDS DELIVERABLE FOCUS TO THE STATES PROJECT TEAM

PSA have recently been engaged by the Department of Justice to strengthen their Project Team and deliver a new State facility to an agreed completion date. PSA will focus on milestone delivery through regular progress monitoring independently identifying any critical actions.

Read Full Article Here

PSA WORKING WITH IOD PARC ON RESILIENCE PROGRAM IN NEPAL

PSA are excited to be working with IOD PARC on a program to help build resilience to natural disasters and climate change in Nepal. This project is especially meaningful to Managing Director Paul Steinfort, who has an expertise and passion for post - disaster project work.

Read Full Article Here

PROGRAM SUCCESS FACTORS

LEARN HOW EVALUATING A PROGRAM WILL ENABLE BEST VALUE

How does your organisation measure the performance of a program or project? Is it purely quantitative based on time and cost inputs, or do you have an established framework that enables measurement of the true value to be delivered?

Read Full Article Here

OBJECTIVE MEASURES AND BEST VALUE REQUIRES EFFECTIVE GOVERNANCE

Governance establishes the processes and procedures to maintain oversight and decision making. While many organisations claim to conduct an effective governance structure, many don't. This leading to less than desirable outcomes.

Read Full Article Here

KEY SUCCESS FACTORS FOR PROGRAMS & PROJECTS

Program and Project failures continue to make the headlines, so PSA reflect on experience and research to provide just which factors are key to providing success.

Read Full Article Here