

WELCOME

2019 is in full swing and in this edition of the PSA Way, we have the pleasure of congratulating PSA Project MD, Paul Steinfort who has received an Order of Australia for “significant services to the construction industry and to the community”. Paul was recognised at this year’s Queens Birthday Honours List, and when interviewed for the newspaper he reflected the simple and practical Project Management methodology that has built PSA “The core of project management is getting what’s really needed and what will work, and what that community and culture can understand and take forward.”

This methodology is put under the microscope as we take a closer look at some recent projects and their performance. The diverse stakeholder groups reported communication as a highly valued / weighted aspect of Project Management methods recognising the ability it has to touch on just about every facet of the program or project, both positively and negatively. These results come as no surprise - PSA’s proven methodology sees communication as one the core and critical elements of Program and Project success.

In February of this year, Victoria paused to commemorate the 10 year anniversary of the fatal Black Saturday bushfires that would later see PSA proudly perform a significant role in the rebuilding of the Murrindindi Shire communities. One of PSA’s Project Managers at the time, Paddy Steinfort, (now sports performance coach in the NBA in America) was immersed in the re-building authority and gaining valuable Project Management experience. Paddy has reflected on some of the key learnings and take-aways that Program and Project Management has taught him, once again proving the robust nature of Project Management and the positive impact it can have in our world.

We also announce new engagements including with the AFL for the upgrade to Marvel Stadium, as well as other industries such as the education sector with the Victorian School Building Authority, major infrastructure with the West Gate Tunnel Project and Development Victoria with the Arts Centre Precinct. All these programs and projects will have lasting positive impacts on the community of Victoria and we are pleased to be providing our valued services to these clients.

PROJECT NEWS

PSA APPOINTED ON MARVEL STADIUM UPGRADE

PSA are excited to announce our recent engagement by the AFL for the proposed Marvel Stadium Upgrade. Drawing on extensive experience in major sporting stadia and complex operating environments, PSA will develop an effective plan to minimise disruption to the venue and bring best value.

Read Full Article Here

DIVERSE ENGAGEMENTS TO DELIVER VALUE

Learn more about PSA's new clients for 2019 and how our extensive experience is being applied across diverse sectors such as Education, Arts and Road Infrastructure. With their own unique challenges and requirements each of them can benefit from our proven program & project management methods.

Read Full Article Here

PAUL STEINFORT RECEIVES ORDER OF AUSTRALIA

'Humbled' by top honour

Project manager among three recognised in Monash

PSA is delighted to announce the recent acknowledgement of Paul in this year's Queens Birthday Honours List, where he was recognised with an Order of Australia for his "significant services to the construction industry and to the community" and decades of dedication to Project Management.

Read Full Article Here

PROJECT MANAGEMENT LESSONS BY PADDY STEINFORT

PROJECT MANAGEMENT LESSONS BY PADDY

Nearly a decade on from his Post disaster bushfire recovery role as Project Manager for PSA, Paddy Steinfort reflects on Project Management lessons learnt and how he has implemented them in his role as Performance Coach in the NBA, proving again the diverse benefits of Program & Project Management. Here shown working with Ben Simmons who has recently signed a new contract with the Philadelphia 76ers for $240 million.

Read Full Article Here

CASE STUDY ON RECENT PROJECTS

As part of our continual performance reflection we surveyed our stakeholders from recently completed projects and were able to gain some valuable feedback on what they see improved their project delivery. We found that communication is one of the most highly valued aspects of Project Management, in particular its ability to positively and negatively impact project delivery.

Read Full Article Here

PSA PROJECT SUCCESS

271 SPRING STREET COMPLETED ON TIME

PSA congratulates Contractor ProBuild and developer ISPT on the recent successful completion, on time, of the architecturally and culturally significant heritage-fronted building on Spring Street. PSA's proven progress monitoring contributed positively to the overall performance and focus for the Project Management Team.

Read Full Article Here

PSA SUPPORTING DHHS IN PRESTON RENEWAL

PSA has supported the State Government 'better homes and stronger communities for all Victorians' program through independent monitoring, reporting and claim assessments at their recently completed Preston site. Our independent monitoring and reporting enabled a staged delivery and handover for occupancy.

Read Full Article Here